NATIONAL WASHINGTON MONUMENT, -- The Board of Managers of the fund have issued an address, in which they make the following appeal for means to complete the work:

"A new Board of Managers have now been appointed. We come into office under favorable auspices, and with well founded hopes of means to prosecute the work. Since our election, on the 22d February last, we have not been ide. Our 22d February last, we have not been idle. Our arrangements have been begun, and are in progress. We appeal to the people. We wish no legislative aid. We look to free hear's; we call upon ail, not the liberal and the generous alone. We call upon each inan who this day whike erect in ail the panoply of freedom in this broad land, who is not dead to the common impulses of humanity. manity, who is worthy in the least degree of the countless and diversified blesings by which he is surrounded, call upon men everywhere to contrib-ute each his mile. A great and mighty people of twenty-five millions cannot be so dead to the senactions which are unnate in every breast at the bare naming of such a benefaction as to refuse to give their aid in such a cause.

Corvaignt or Naws .- Extraordinary!-In conmittee on the abolition of the newspaper stamp, the new English Chanceljor of the Exchequer-exeditor of the Edinburg Quarterly Review-pro, osed to insert clauses to effectually muzzle the press and prevent the circulation of intelligence. His proposition was to the effect that a proprietor of a newspapers should be entitled to a copyright for every original article, letter, paragraph, communication and composition which shall for the first be published in such necespaper, and any person violating the copyright, even by a colorable abridge. ment within 21 hours ofter the appearance of such article, letter, &c., to be fined from 5 to £20. MEASUREMENT OF BARTHQUAKES .--- The forner director of the Observatory at Prague, Dr. Krell, has invented an ingenious instrument to measure the force, duration, and direction of earthquakes. It consists of a pendulum so contrived that, whilst t can move in any direction, it cannot return. A perpendicular cylinder is attached, which by means of clockwork, turns on its verticle axis in twentyfour houss. A pole with a thin elastic arm, is fixed near the pendulum; this arm, points towards the cylinder, and presses on it gently a pencil, by which means an unbroken line is formed on the autface of the cylinders as long os the pendulum is at rest, but if it is put in motion by an earthquake, the pencil makes broken marks, which show the strength, direction, and period of the Violence in Kansas.

We regret to learn that bloody deeds begin to attest the hostile feeling existing in Kansas in relation to squatter sovereignty. By a steamer just arrived from Fort Learenworth, we have received a copy of a hambill, dated the 1st inst., in which the murder of Malcomb Clark is announced, and a call made to the citizens to meet and take action that man, I don't know such a man,' said Francisco, resuming his work, and eyeing his interrogator, who appeared to be one of the 'half-horse-half-alligator' breet of Kentuckians, he relation to squatter soverighty. The fellow they say can whip all creation and Kaintuck to hoot.' a call made to the citizens to meet and take action in relation to the matter. The deceased is represented as having borne the character of a most worthy and amiable citizen. Of the standing of McCrea, the homicide, no mention is made, nor are we acquainted at all with his history. The difficulty occurred on the 30th uit, and the meeting of the citizens was to have taken place on the 3d instant.

Great excitement prevailed of Fort Leavenworth when the steemer left. McCrea was in confine. The means of the peans of the pe

Peter Brancisco; the Sampson of the Western Hemisphere.

As late as the year 1830, there lived in Western Virginia a man, whose strength was so remarkable as to win for him the title of the "Virginia Sampson." He knew nothing of his birth or parent-

Revolution. Being of an alventurous turn in mind, he sought and obtained permission of his dotes and stories of the war, of which he possessed master to join theatmy, and was engaged in active a rich fund, rendered him a welcome guest in the service during the whole contest. Such was his atrength and personal bravery, that no enemy could temperat habits, together with his kind disposition, resist him. He wielded a sword, the blade of made him many friends, and through their influence which was five feet in length, as though it had be was appointed Sergeant at arms of the Visbeen a feather, and every one who came in con-tact with him paid the fortest of his life. At Stony Point he was one of the "Perforn Hope," which was advanced to cut away the obatis, and, next to was advanced to out away the obatis, and, next to Major Glibbon was the first man to enter the works. At Brandywine, and Monmouth, he exhibited the most featless bravery, and nothing but his inability to write, prevented his promotion to a commission. Transferred to the South, he took part in most of the engagements in that section, and to wards the close of the war, he was engaged in a contest where exhibited in a striking manner, his contest which exhibited in a striking manner, his course my wife was with me. tematkable degree of self-confidence and cour-oge.

One day while reconnoitering, he stopped at the house of a man by the name of W——, to refersh himself. While at the table he was surprised by name British troopers, who rode up to the "Eu-te-are!" I mammured, half awake. that he was so greatly outnumbered, he preferred ten the story, you'll to suffender, and the drogoons seeing he was appa- wake to the reality." tently very peacefully inclined, after disarming "Thus adjured, I woke up in right earnest, too him, allowed him considerable freedom, white late to hear any of the mouse hun; but just in time they sat down to partake of the food which he to hear the next door open, and a little, quavering demanded of him everything of value about him at the risk of his life in case of refusal. 'I have nothing to give,' said Francisco, 'so use your pleasure.' 'Give up those massive silver buokles in your shoes,' said the dragoon. They were the right of a friend,' replied Francisco, 'and give them to you I never shall, take them if you will, you have the power, but I will never give them to any one.' Putting his sabre under his arm, the profiler stooped down to take them Frincisco seeing the opportunity, which was too good to be lost, seized the sword, and drawing it with force from under the arm of the soldier, dealt him a severe blow across the skull. Although severety sive of mice. Can't you come in and catch the wounded, yet being a brave man, the dragoon executive? cweature? chart you come in and caren me wounded, yet being a brave man, the dragoon executive? cweature? If the way in the stream of the sold that an intensity who was too quick for him however, and as he pulled the trigger, a blow from the sword nearly severed his, wrist, and placed him in hors decombit. The report of the pixtol drew the other dragoons into the yard as well as W—, who well as the animal out into the entrey!

'A brief to mark from the watchman that the he handed to one of the tolders and told him to be was closed, sent Mr. Pinkey back into his and pulled the trigger. Fortunately it missed fire, and Francisco closed in upon him. A shortstruggle ensued, which ended in his disaming and wounding the soldier. Tartton's troop of four hundred men were now in sight and the other diagoons were about to attack him. Seeing his case was desperature, he turned toward an ail-and then attack the main body? at the same time rushing at the dragoons with the fury of an entered tight.

They did not engage him, but fled precipitately to the troop, panie strack and dismayed. Seizing upon the traitorous villain, W.——, Francisco was about to dispatch him, but he begged and plead so hard for his life, that he forgave him, and told him to secrete for him the eight horses, which the soldiers left behind them. Perceiving that Tariton had dispatched two other dregroons in search if him, he made off into the adjoining wood, and while they stopped at the house, he, like an old fox, doubled upon their rear and successfully evaded their vigilance. The next day he went to W.——, for his Loises; he demanded two of them for his services, and generous intentions. Finding his situation dangerous, and surfounded by enemies, where he ought to have found friends, Francisco was compelled to make the best of it and left with six hoises, intending to reverge himself upon W.——, at some future time, 'but,' as he said 'Providence, ordained that I should not be his executioner, for he broke his neck by a fall from one of the very hoises.'

Many other angedoles are lold of Francisco, it. rushing at the dragoons with the fury of an en-neck by a fall from one of the very horses.'

Many other anecdotes are told of Francisco, ilustrative of his immense strength and personal lican says the following o centried in that city re-provers. At Camden, where Gates was defeated, cently: prowers. At Camden, where Gates was defeated, he retreated and after running along a road some distance, he sat down to rest himself. He was suddenly accosted by a British dragoon, who presented a pistol, and demanded his immediate surrender. His gun being empty he feigned submission, and said he would surrender, at the same time remarking that his gun was no further use to him, he presented it sideways to the trooper, who in reaching for it threw himself off his guard, when Francisco, quick as thought ran him through with the bayonet, and as he fell from his horse, he mounted him and continued his retreat. Overtaking his commanding officer, Colonel Mayo, of Powhattan, he gave him up the animal, for which set of generosity the Colonel, afterwards present. act of generosity the Colonel, afterwards presented him with a thousand acres of land in Kentucky. The following anecdote exemplifying his peace-ful nature and his strength, is also told of Fran-

By this time Francisco had become angry at the importunity of his vis.tor, and determined to put an end to the scene. Setzing his antagonist, therefore, by the seat of his buckskin breeches, and the collar of his hunting shirt, he threw him over the fence into the road; then walking leisurely to where his one was teed, he unfastened him, and taking him up by main strength, threw him after his discomitted tider.

The Kentuckian raised himself from the ground, perfectly dum-founded by such an exhibition of strength, and after rubbing his eyes as though he thought he might not have seen clearly, he mounted his pony, remarking, "Well, stranger, I tecon you'll do, I guess it's about time for me to make tracks.
